About Social Forestry, Motala Division –Buldhana

The main meaning of social forestry is the program run by the people, for the people, by the people "Social forestry " means planting fruit trees in the vacant places, which will protect the environment as well as increase employment in rural areas. National Agriculture Commission coined the term social forestry in 1976 for a program to plant trees that supplied fuel, fodder wood and minor forest products. In this regard, as much misuse of social forestry has been done, hardly anyone else would have done it.

The National Commission on Agriculture has divided social forestry into three categories – urban forestry, rural forestry and farm forestry. Social forestry programs can be helpful in solving many problems in rural areas. Because, under this program along with the production of food grains, timber and fruits can also be produced from the same farm. Whereas climate change as the current global problem is affecting the rural life and poor sections the most, social forestry program can prove to be an important tool in reducing their ill effects.

Forest Management

Amravati Territorial Circle includes Amravati, East Melghat, West Melghat and Buldhana Division. In 1964 old Buldhana Division was divided into Akola and Buldhana Division. Now, area of Buldhana Division is limited to district boundary of Buldhana District. For protection and conservation of wild life wild life divisions like Gugamal Wildlife, Melghat tiger Project, Wan Sanctuary etc. established in the Amravati District. Similarly Narnala WL in Akola District and Nyanganga WL, Ambabarwa WL in Buldhana District are established.
